

Cookham High Street

COOKHAM: The village was a sea of Union Jacks and bunting on Monday as families celebrated in Cookham High Street.

Village restaurants provided culinary delights and the forecourt of Barnside Motors was transformed into a stage for the afternoon. One of the entertainers was Sima from Sima's Action Kids with high-energy dances. Village celebrity Timmy Mallett was also at the event.

Mallow Park

PINKNEYS GREEN: Indian food. Families in Mallow Park didn't let rain spoil the mood during their street party on Sunday.

Music ranging from Elvis and The Kinks to LMFAO and Rizzle Kicks was enjoyed by all along with a barbecue and

The street held a similar party in 2002 for the Queen's Golden Jubilee and in 1977 for the Silver Jubilee. Profits from the sale of the tickets will be donated to the Thames Valley and Chiltern Air Ambulance.

Fairlea

COX GREEN: Gloomy weather didn't deter residents in a quiet cul-de-sac from taking to the street to mark the jubilee.

Neighbours in Fairlea set up marquees, strung up bunting and shared drinks on Monday at a party which lasted until 11pm.

Organiser Debbie Healy said: "It was a great success and we were very fortunate there was no rain."

Old and young in patriotic spirit

TOWN CENTRE: The WRVS Centre in York Road was the venue for a party on Friday. Ref:113593-2

BURNHAM: A jubilee-themed day at Priory School on Thursday started with an assembly about the Queen's reign. Every class at the school in Orchard Avenue also organised activities.

British pride was also shown by community groups and schools. Beefeaters, fancy dress and the crowning of new kings and queens were all part of the fun

WINDSOR: Thomas Peace, four, celebrates as the Lilliput Learners marked the diamond jubilee on Thursday. Ref:113583-5

COOKHAM RISE: A party in the playground helped youngsters at Cookham Rise Primary School to mark the occasion. Ref:113585-3

PINKNEYS GREEN: Patriotic pupils at Alwyn Infant School celebrated with a picnic on Thursday. Ref:113589-2

DEDWORTH: A castle and some medals all helped create that royal feeling when children from Buttons pre-school celebrated on Wednesday last week. Left: Summer Holmes, three, at Buttons jubilee party. Ref:113566-1
